

AARO Field Day 2008 – June 28 & 29

If you thought a perfect Field Day in South Texas entails ...

- a partly overcast sky and a nice breeze
- gazing at Antenna Farm silhouettes you've just erected
 - hearing radios and generators humming nearby
 - having eyeball-QSOs you've been meaning to get to
- making new friends, and maybe even having an opportunity to introduce another to your favorite modus operandi
 - chow good enough to call a real Texan BBQ
- and top it all off with Playing Radio the whole night through,

... you're right. And we got it this year!

A few areas around town were lucky enough to receive some much-needed rain FD weekend, but storms were not an issue for us. (Hopefully your yard at home benefitted, though!)

Thanks for making it all work the way it's supposed to – rigs, antennas, power supplies, food, drinks and desserts, and the man- and woman-power to keep our 3A stations operating – it truly is/was a group effort.

Ya'll done gud --- Be Proud!
